LAST DAY OF REGISTRATION.

Registration closes today. It has been asserted that registration closed on October 10th, but such is a mistake. Section 31 of the "Rules and Regulations for Administering Oaths and Holding Elections in Hawaii" reads:

"The boards shall meet within their respective districts at such times BETWEEN the first day of April and the thirtieth day of June, 1897, and between such days in each second year thereafter, as many times as may be necessary to enable them to register all persons entitled to register."

The fourth paragraph of section 34 of the Organic Act amends the above in the following words: "In section 31 strike out 'the first day of April and the thirtieth day of June, in the year 1897,' and insert in lieu thereof, 'the last day of August and the tenth day of October, in the year 1900.'"

It will thus be seen that the word "between" was not stricken out and that registration must be BETWEEN the last day of August and the tenth day of October, 1900. Attorney General Dole pointed this out in his opinion rendered at the request of Registrar of Voters Wray Taylor before registration began, in which he declared that registration could not begin on the last day of August, as the law very explicitly said "BETWEEN the last day of August and the tenth day of October." And as registration could not begin on August 31st, so in like reason it cannot end on October 10th, but must end on October 9th. Register today if you wish to vote.

The telegraphic news of the attitude of the United States in notifying the European powers that this country would keep large naval guards at Amoy and Newchwang, China, would indicate that Uncle Sam thinks a breaking up and partitioning of China is bound to occur, and if it does your Uncle Samuel proposes to have a slice and sphere of influence along with the rest.

The labor agitator seems determined to prevent the return to work of the striking miners at advanced wages, if he can. Of course if the men return to work the professional agitator and walking delegate will be cut out of some rich pickings. When will labor men learn to treat directly with their employers over labor questions and not allow themselves to be used as puppets for the benefit of professional agitators?

Reports from the States on the political situation point very conclusively to the re-election of McKinley.

There have been very few labor strikes that could not have been prevented if laborers and employers had talked the differences over in a reasonable way and eliminated the professional leader and strike agitator.

Mr. Bryan and his anti-everything campaign does not seem to be gaining very rapidly among the thinking men of the country. Mr. Bryan will be a worse defeated man this time than he was four years ago.

Candidate Bryan has had a good deal to say about maintaining an army in idleness and about the danger from a regular army composed of 100,000 men, which would be in the ratio of one soldier to about every 765 people. In his speech at Cheyenne, Wyo., September 25, Governor Roosevelt talked about expansion, militarism and imperialism as harped upon by Bryan and met the latter's charges of troops "walking about in idleness" in the following words:

"Lawton no longer walks about in idleness. Lawton and Reilly no longer walk about in idleness. Was it idle when Chaffee, at the command of the president, marched his troops forward, refusing to wait longer for the other allied forces, who said they could not advance until they were shamed into advancing by his forward movement? Was it idle when the boy Titus sprang on to the walls surrounding an immortal despotism with the flag that was to bring security and liberty to the women and children starving and waiting in that dreadful barrier surrounding and protecting the legations? Walking about in idleness! The gallant efforts of our men in the Philippines and the death of so many of them, it seems to me, might at least spare them the slight and snivel of any of our own people."

HAWAII SEEMS VERY NEAR.

[Editorial in the Chicago Inter-Ocean, Sept. 15.]
The advertisements in our esteemed contemporary, The Honolulu Republican of August 25th are interesting in so far as they reflect not only the state of trade in Hawaii, but the needs and tastes as well as the fads of the populace. One of the most noticeable features of the advertisements is the stamp of Americanism upon them. In general appearance they do not differ materially from the advertisements in newspapers of any other part of the United States. The Republican makes a point of "setting them up tastefully," and the merchants seem to have discovered the value of position and display.

"Went one of our crash or white piggy skirts this hot weather and keep cool," says a leading Honolulu dry goods house, while another concern announces that a clearance sale of millinery is going on, and advises customers to come early, not to "avoid the rush," but "to take advantage of the complete display." Another house is closing out rugs at fabulous reductions, and a "remnant ribbon sale at less than half price" is on another page. Bicycles of a certain make are offered at "$25 spot cash," the Renova cigar is offered at 5 cents; per steamship Australia there is due "smoked salmon, Saratoga chips, cauliflower, eagle breakfast cheese" and other luxuries, for which orders may now be placed; and a clothing store called "The Kwik" is selling "boys' knee pants cheaper when they can be laid down by any other house in Honolulu."

Town lots, the choicest in the capital, can be purchased on the installment plan; there are "rare chances" in suburban property; a fashionable tailor announces that he is ready to do business in the "Elite" building, and tourists going to Wailuku are advised to stop at the "Windsor," which is a "first-class house in every particular." At the Astor House restaurant, corner of King and Alakea streets, "meals are served at all hours" by Ah Chuck, the gentlemanly proprietor; the Bergstrom Music Company offers the latest coon songs and rag-time compositions; the "Orpheum" theater promises "a change in programme Monday and Thursday evenings, new songs and specialties," and advises its patrons not to miss the "luau" Monday night.

A grand ball is announced for Labor Day, Monday, September 3d, and there are to be races by the Honolulu Driving Association at Kapiolani park. "All Republicans of the Seventh precinct, Fifth district," are requested to meet at the Reform School building "for the purpose of nominating delegates to the district convention." There are numerous other "ads" of the kind we are familiar with at home, and from the general tone of The Republican's patronage it would seem as if Honolulu might be in the next county or the next state, rather than in the middle of the Pacific ocean. In this instance at least American ideas and American methods of doing business, as well as American tastes, have followed the flag. The Hawaiians appear to have fallen into our ways as easily and as gracefully as a summer girl falls into a hammock.

Sweet Maria.

[Written for The Republican.]
Emblazoned on the page of glory,
Attuned to verse and famed in story,
Your name doth lead the category.
Oh, Sweet Maria.

Fair France may laud her martyred Jeanne,
And other lands have women, many famous,
but there are scarcely any
Like Sweet Maria.

How well each fascinated fellow
Could recognize your accents mellow,
Responding to his wistful "Hello!"
Oh, Sweet Maria.

Now horrid fears our souls encumber,
Our dearest hopes are steeped in slumber,
A stranger voice now answers, "Num-ber?"
Oh, Sweet Maria.

Farwell! ye badly treated lassies,
You have aloha of the masses,
A love which other love surpasses.
Oh, Sweet Maria.

We are opposed to paltry meannesses,
We're down on secret dalliances;
We want our old ragtime waltzes.
Oh, Sweet Maria.

Oh, false, perfidious Louisa!
Fascinating girls employment easy,
Acting the part of Julius Caesar,
Toward Sweet Maria.

This change abrupt of female bosoms,
The general feeling thwart and crosses,
Resulting in the company losses
Of Sweet Maria.

Stockholders, rich with heavy purses,
Reform at once your wicked courses,
A generous man his cash disburses
For Sweet Maria.

Ring up Maria and say, "Ma honey,
We've acted singular and funny;
Come back, all hands, for increased money."
Ye Sweet Maria.
